TRENDING PAGE

On the trading page, the people a user follow will appear first.

A user will select the country from which he wants the celebrities to be. (For example, if a user select "Spain" for example, only celebrities who have registered this country when they signed up will appear. (No geolocation, if a celebrity has registered "Spain" but is in another country, they will appear in "Spain".)

Celebrities will be classified according to the amount of money the app makes with them. If the app makes €500 with a celebrity and €100 with another, the celebrity with who the app makes €500 will appear before the other one on the Trending Page.

The order in which the celebrities will appear will be refreshed every minute. The celebrity with who the app makes €500 will count as €100 per minute ( $€100 \text{ per minute} \times 5 \text{ minutes} = €500$ .) and the celebrity with who the app makes €100 will count as €20 per minute.

SEARCH PAGE

The search page is similar to the Trending Page.

Obviously, a user will be able to search a celebrity simply with their username.

There will be 2 tabs a "Following" and one "Suggested".

In the "Following" tab, every celebrity a user follows will appear and be classified by their number of followers. The celebrities with the most followers will appear first.

In the "Suggested" tab, every celebrity ("Suggested" as for recommendations) will be classified by their number of followers just like in a the "Following" tab.

As the user scrolls down the screen, he will see a bunch of celebrities (like the first time you use the YouTube music app).

PROFILE

On the "profile" page, a user will see when a celebrity is available for FaceTime and will be able to bid to get to FaceTime the celebrity. If the celebrity is live, he will also be able to watch them by clicking their profile picture (like Instagram)

FACETIME

_a celebrity is live. He will just have to tap his/her username to be redirected to the FaceTime page.

_a user wins an auction, he will just have to tap "Pay Now" and a window will pop up.

_another user place a higher bid. A user will just have to tap "Bid Again" and a window will pop up.

AUCTIONS

« Auctions » is not a page, it's a window that will pop up on the "Profile" page when a user taps the FaceTime icon to place a bid (or on the Notifications page when a user taps "Bid Again")

PAY NOW

« Pay Now » is not a page, it's a window that will pop up automatically when a user wins an auction. All the payment methods will be shown. A user will just have to tap the payment method he wants to use and pay.

If a user closes the "Pay Now" window, "PAY NOW" will be written in red in the top right hand corner of the screen and the "Pay Now" window will pop up again if "PAY NOW" is tapped.
